“My husband of 17 years left me for my best friend. I know betrayal.

Sex and Coaching (Host: Monica Day)

You can learn a lot about a person from their sex life. Where do they hold back? What's their relationship to desire? What's the impact on their life if they are feeling satisfied, frustrated, or desperate? How someone is in their private life will greatly affect how they are in their public life. And yet, many coaches consider discussions about sex as off limits -- or they leave it to the "sex coaches."

Join Monica to discuss what it takes to organically approach the topic of sex in your coaching, how you can keep your boundaries, and what you can learn about your client - - and yourself -- when you are willing to tackle this touchy topic. We will also discuss how to navigate sexual energy when it comes up in a coaching context and feels inappropriate or uncomfortable.

Transforming Shame: In Your Clients or In Yourself (Host: Triambika Ma Vive)

Shame thwarts our ability to move forward in our actions. Clients are more often than not holding onto some form of shame or embarrassment about where they are in some aspect of their life. Similarly, your own shame can and will get in the way of owning your gifts and valuing your worth as a coach. Join Triambika and learn how to work with this insidious emotion.
